Te Rito

Dashboards for schools

Te Rito is a secure, cloud-based platform connecting education systems with a unique learning record for every kura or school-enrolled student in New Zealand.

Accessible by educators and students at any time, each record is a reliable, up-to-date profile that moves with them throughout their education.

This guide explains how Te Rito's dashboards and access to real-time data help tumuaki, principals, teachers and kaimahi understand data-driven insights, measure progress, refine strategies and optimise learning experiences in their schools and across communities.

One place for data you can trust

Optimising learning experiences is easier when you're able to identify opportunities for growth or potential issues, and can tailor local practices and resources to support your students.

Te Rito starts with the student – and its dashboards are designed to help you easily track and report on outcomes.

Specific to your school, your view of consolidated, aggregated information from your SMS and a range of other education systems and sources is continuously enhanced as more schools connect to the platform, new data is added, and records are updated daily.

Use Te Rito's dashboards to:

› Inform roll growth management – track enrolment numbers and patterns to anticipate shifts in capacity, staffing and resources.

› Align transition support – monitor student arrivals and exits to ensure smooth onboarding and offboarding, especially at critical points – starting a new school, moving from primary to intermediate or intermediate to secondary, or leaving secondary.

› Provide transparency for leadership and boards – access to up-to-date enrolment and other types of data enables aligned, evidence-based planning and decisions.

› Save on effort – less time spent sourcing, extracting and sorting information manually.

Daily insights, long-term benefits

Te Rito gives you back the time you need to focus on your students by:

› Simplifying information-gathering, analysing and reporting – with visibility of patterns and trends across your school (and soon, you'll have the ability to filter at regional and national levels, and compare your attendance and achievement data).

› Giving you access to the right data to guide the right decisions – from comparing insights to planning and problem-solving, through to managing emerging risks, issues and continuous improvement.

› Reducing a reliance on spreadsheets, PDFs, forms and paper documents – with less time spent on sourcing information, eliminating duplication, cross-checking and guesswork.

Focus on what matters most

With your student data in one place, Te Rito's dashboards are the ideal analytics solution for principals, providing access to clear, ready-to-share summaries, supported by a vast range of student-level information.

Drill down into your school roll across demographics, transitions, attendance and achievement, and overlay with a deeper understanding of your students' needs using additional features such as the learning profile.

Demographics dashboard

See basic enrolment data for your school and filter by enrolment type:[1]

› Age

› Gender

› Ethnicity

› Iwi

› Year level

---

1   The demographics dashboard shows aggregated data. Where information might relate to a small group of students, to protect privacy, data is anonymised and the relevant value is shown as -1.

Transitions dashboard

See enrolment reporting and filter by demographic data for your school, and:

› Prepare for transition peaks and ensure adequate support mechanisms are in place.

› Support planning with near-real-time data on roll growth shifts – identify and quantify incoming and exit trends to anticipate teaching, learning and community needs.

› Adjust class structures or timetables based on up-to-date enrolment numbers – or future numbers based on soon to be available pre-enrolment data.

Attendance dashboard

See attendance reporting and filter by demographic data for your school, and:

› Apply additional filtering by year, term, month, day or group.

› Identify patterns, enable faster interventions, and track if they're making a difference.

› Connect progress, behaviour or wellbeing with attendance monitoring, and use insights to support conversations with parents and whānau.

› Apply analytics to timetabling/scheduling, resource planning and operational reporting – in your school and with other schools.

Achievement dashboard

Te Rito's achievement dashboard provides principals with a further analytics solution in the toolkit. Compare attendance and achievement data and get the insights you need to understand and address any potential issues.

As with Te Rito's other dashboards, filter by demographic data for your school, and:

› Apply additional filtering by subject, year level, gender, ethnicity or individual students.

› Use patterns and trends to set meaningful, measurable targets and monitor strategies.

› Recognise early any issues impacting specific students or groups and identify curriculum areas needing targeted support or resourcing.

› Reference trusted data to show progress, guide conversations, qualify decisions and focus your support teams.

Informed leadership, effective governance

Te Rito's dashboards connect you, your leadership team and Board with insights – making it easier to ask the right questions, prepare data-informed responses, and focus on meaningful outcomes.

Integrating the dashboards with your regular reporting cycles allows you and your Board to monitor performance and make informed decisions aligned with long-term strategic sector goals.

Transparency and accountability is helped by oversight and regular access to clear and consistent data, building trust and confidence, and strengthening engagement, with your wider school community.

Te Rito's whakatauāki acknowledges that student information is taonga and must be protected. The name Te Rito was gifted by Te Aupōuri. It represents the young flax at the heart of the harakeke, where it is secure and protected as it grows and flourishes – reflecting our protection of information as taonga.
